

Biography

Jay W. Kelley is a retired LtGen, USAF. Most recently, he was President, ManTech Space Systems and ManTech Global Services, under ManTech International Corporation. Previously, he was Vice President of Military Programs for Lockheed Martin Technical Operations (LMTO). Prior to joining LMTO, Mr. Kelley was employed by System Technology Associates, Inc., where he was Chief Operating Officer.

Mr. Kelley completed his 37-year Air Force career in 1996 at the rank of Lieutenant General. He served as a Base Commander, Strategic Missile Wing Commander, Vice Commander of Air Force Space Command, Director of Public Affairs in the Office of the Secretary of the Air Force, Commander of Air University at Maxwell Air Force Base (AFB), and Director of Education at the Air Education and Training Command.

Immediately following his retirement from the Air Force, he worked with Toffler Associates where he developed and orchestrated "futurist" business strategies with major corporations and government organizations. Mr. Kelley presently serves on the Board of Directors for the Colorado Springs Philharmonic, is a Trustee of the Falcon Foundation, and President of the Association of Air Force Missileers.

Mr. Kelley earned his Bachelor of Science degree from the United States Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs in 1964, and a Master of Science degree in Political Science from Auburn University in Montgomery, Alabama, in 1973. He completed Squadron Officer School, Maxwell AFB, in 1967; Air Command and Staff College in 1973; Research Associate Studies in 1980, International Institute for Strategic Studies, London, England; National War College in 1981, Fort Lesley J. McNair; the Program for Senior Executives in National and International Security in 1986, John F. Kennedy School of Government, Harvard University; and the Program on Foreign Politics and National Interest in 1987, Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Jay and his wife Ho Sook reside in Larkspur, Colorado.
